PEACE RESEARCH ABSTRACTS JOURNAL, now in its twenty-first volume of publication, contains abstracts (summaries) of articles, books, reports, and conference papers on subjects related to war/peace issues and international affairs. Every month about 500 such abstracts are published, classified according to subject. The journal is an official publication of the International Peace Research Association and has had support from UNESCO. It is published by the Peace Research Institute-Dundas.

The abstracting work is done by about 50 volunteer abstractors around the world. This pool of abstractors needs constant replenishing, because from time to time some stop abstracting owing to various personal reasons. The work is interesting and informative. Abstracting, which can be done at home, is an ideal activity for university-educated women with family and home obligations, but teachers, librarians, professors, journalists, chemists and others have also been among our abstractors. If there is a particular journal which you are interested in abstracting, please mention it.

If you are interested in abstracting, please write to:

CALL FOR PAPERS: The new JAI Press annual Research in Social Policy: Critical Historical and Contemporary Perspectives publishes unconventional articles on the history and sociology of social policy. It attempts to fill a void in the field through defining policy as an elite construction of reality used to formalize the creation, reproduction, or modification of societal inequality patterns. Emphasis will be on the consciousness, culture, and organizational contexts of elites and of those oppressed populations "produced" through policymaking. Only theoretically informed historical and contemporary studies will be considered for publication. Authors should submit three copies of their manuscript by August 31, 1985, for consideration for Volume 1; by December 1, 1985, for Volume 2. Send submissions to:
